Editing a Customer Record (Individual or Organization)

MAX provides a platform for the user to view and manage an individual or organization's Customer Record.

The Customer Record is made up of important information about the customer, such as identification types, contact information, characteristics, physical attributes, etc. This information may need to be updated or corrected from time to time, and MAX allows the user to easily modify this information.

Some information on the Customer Record can only be modified by a supervisor.
