Commercial Credential

► CDL Fees: A Quick Glance

The Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act (CMVSA) of 1986 required the development of minimum standards for all commercial drivers nationwide. However, it was the Motor Carrier Safety Improvement Act (MCSIA) of 1999 that required the development of an endorsement for school bus operators.

Prior to the issuance of a CDL or CLP, the applicant must meet all applicable eligibility, identity, and authorized presence requirements.

The Division shall only issue a Class A, B, or C license to an individual who demonstrates proficiency in the English language. Proficiency is determined by the successful completion of all applicable skills examinations. Once proficiency has been completed, a valid Arizona CDL or CLP will display 'Commercial Driver License', the appropriate DL class and, when applicable, CDL endorsements.

CDL Authorized Presence Eligibility Requirements

There are certain types of authorized presence that are eligible to apply for a CLP or CDL and must meet the requirements for identification, age, and provide proof of authorized presence.

1. U.S. Citizen or Naturalized Citizen.
2. Permanent Residence (also referred to as Limited Term).
3. Temporary INS with I-94 (also referred to as Non-Domicile).

► Additional Guidelines for Eligibility

Applying for a CLP or CDL

Once an applicant has met the authorized presence requirements and guidelines for obtaining a CLP or CDL, further requirements are required.

► Commercial Learners Permit (CLP)

► Commercial Driver License (CDL)
