Brand Management

What is a Brand?

Brands are descriptive labels (applied by state motor vehicle agencies) regarding the status of a motor vehicle, such as 'salvage', or 'restored salvage'.

The reason for branding a title helps identifies what has happened to the vehicle so the next purchaser is aware prior to buying the vehicle, as this may influence the value of the vehicle.

NMVTIS keeps a history of brands that have been applied to the vehicle by states.

If a vehicle's title has been branded, it is an official designation made by the Division and should display on the vehicle's title. While each state has its own list of brands, the Division uses the following brand designations:

- Dismantled
- Flood Damage
- Non-Repairable
- Reconstructed
- Refurbished
- Restored Salvage
- Retrofit
- Salvage
- State Assigned VIN
- Stolen

In MAX, only one brand (most recent/current) will display on the Vehicle Information Page. To see a full history of brands for the vehicle, see AAMVA Helpdesk - Vehicle for more information.

If more than one owner and regardless of legal status, you can add or remove a brand without additional owners, as it is not a normal title transfer of ownership. View the Signature Requirements for T&R signature requirements based on legal status.

Other Statuses of a Vehicle

Crushed and Junk vehicles are not considered branded but a status of a vehicle. However, once they have been given this status in MAX, it will display in the Brand section on a Vehicle Information page

These statuses will not be added by a CSR in a field office, but by the Abandoned Vehicle Unit after all the requirements are met.
