Emissions

An emission is a smog test performed on a vehicle to assure the vehicle meets Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) standards enforced by the Arizona Department of Environmental Quality (ADEQ). The EPA agency sets the standards for air quality in the United States. The State of Arizona is required to meet these standards.

The EPA has identified cities, towns, and rural areas which meet the air quality standards and those cities, towns, and rural areas which do not meet the air quality standards. These areas are identified as follows:

- Attainment Areas: Any city, town, or rural area that meets air quality standards. Vehicles permanently located in attainment areas are NOT required to have emissions testing
- Non-Attainment Areas: Any city, town, or rural area that does NOT meet the air quality standards (smoggy areas). There are two non-attainment areas that do not meet the standards for air quality and each have different testing standards
 - Metro Phoenix Area A: Maricopa, Yavapai, and Pinal counties
 - Metro Tucson Area B: Pima County

All other counties comply with EPA standards and therefore do not require emissions testing, unless the vehicle is used to commute to work within the Metro Phoenix or Metro Tucson areas.

The requirement for an emissions testing is based on the zip code of the owner's residential address or the vehicle's domicile address. Customers are not required to provide documentation authenticating the vehicle address.
